MUST REPAIR THE BRITISH CABLE

England Demands That Shah Restore Lines Cut Near Tabriz.

(Special from United Press.)

London, March 5.—The British Forcign Office today sent instructions to the British Minister at Teheran to demand of the Shah that he order the immediate repair of the Indo-European cables which the Royalists destroyed in their operations around Tabriz. The injury to the cable is unusually serious as it interferes with the cable route to India which England considers it important to keep clear. The repairs will have to be made by the government as the activities of the Royalists who were revenging the country about Tabriz make an unofficial attempt at the repairs impossible. The communication to the minister was worded in the strongest language.

Seaside Council, R. A., meet this evening. There are a number of applications to be acted upon. Grand Warden Samuel N. Brainard of East Hartford, and George H. Vosburg, a member of the Grand Council committee on Laws, will be present. Orator W. W. Bent has prepared an extensive program for the entertainment of the visitors after the business meeting. The council has added four new orembers during the month and as the working forces have been organized under the skillful direction of Regent H. M. Robinson, it is expected that many more will be added before his term is up. The Grand Council of the order will hold its annual session in this city for three days in April.

Nashville, Tenn., March 5.—Because of the request from the jury that there should be night sessions in order that they might get back to their farming, Judge Hart issued an order in the trial of Duncan Cooper, Robin Cooper and John Sharp for the murder of ex-Senator Carmack, that the attorneys cut out their lengthy arguder of ex-Senator Carmack, that the attorneys cut out their lengthy arguments. Were it not that the State has promised to complete its case in rebuttal by tomorrow night, it is likely the request of the jury would be granted but under recent circumstances the court will not interfere.

It is now considered likely that the case will go to the jury about Wednesday night or Thursday morning. While Judge Hart has decided that he will not admit the night sessions the lawyers will eliminate their unnecessary arguments.

Today's early session was devoted to receiving evidence of the first half a dozen witnesses.

Pension Building Crowded With People -President and Mrs. Taft in Attendance.

Handsome Gowns Worn by the Women - Descriptions of Some of the Washington, March 5 .- The inaugural ball, President Taft's first official public social function, fared better under the weather conditions than any other feature of the day. The attendance was of course smaller than at other inaugural balls, but at that the big Pension Office was crowded. Everybody seemed to have forgotten the troubles of the day and all were out for a good time.

The decorations for the ball were the most elaborate and artistic in the history of this function. The color scheme was green and gold. The vast expanse of ceiling was covered by a canopy of deep golden cloth.

In the President's box were Mrs. Taft and the other members of his family.

Th President and Mrs. Taft went together into the thoroughly crowded ballroom. A swarm of attendants cleared the way. After promenading a bit the Presidential party made its way to the Presidential box and remained there for some time.

The women in official life and others present were of course beautifully gowned. Mrs. Taft wore a gown which was of the modified Empire fashion made of rich heavy white satin, a Grecian drapery of white chiffon cloth hanging down. The embroidery was done in silver thread and appeared not only in the gown proper but also in the court train of satin. The sleeves were of rare old rose point lace which the queen of vaudeville by enthusias. were of rare old rose point lace, which was also used with effect on the bodice. Mrs. Sherman, wife of the Vice-President, wore a gown of white and silver made with panels back and front of satin edged with a wide band of silver embroidery, the back panel falling from the shoulder, forming a sort of court train effect. This long narrow train was also finished with a silver embroidery. Panels of silver tissue were let in at the side, over which the material was caught with silver cords and tassels. The bodice was trimmed with silver embroidery and silver fringe, which also appeared in the tight fitting sleeves.
